Saturday, July 3, 2021 1:56pm

As presented by (the spirit of) Dick (Clark)

133. I introduced so many musical artists to the world. Each and every one of them was nothing more than an imposter taking credit for God's handiwork.
134. A company that sold acne medication used to be one of the major sponsors on 'American Bandstand'. All products that have anything truly helpful in them at all, are made thorough people and companies. That's all. They just facilitate what God wants to do.
135. "Smile. You're on camera." I used to say that all the time. Now I will say it to you. Show the world what is really inside of you.

136. Let children be. Help them. Facilitate what they want to do but don't use them for your own devices. They aren't ATMs.

138. I used to think I was really lucky to be in the right place at the right time. Now I know that luck had nothing to do with it. I was always where I was supposed to be.

140. I liked to explore how heavy music could sound. It doesn't appeal to everyone but it speaks to some. God always wants to speak to all parts of itself.

141. Being a popular musician was great, but the celebrity aspect was the pits. I wanted to shake people and tell them, "I'm not the one doing this. Leave me alone." I knew.

142. It's fun to challenge people, even scare them. It's a chance for them to question why they're afraid of sounds or imagery.

143. Dying young seems tragic. Look at all of the wasted years of potential suffering there could have been.
144. I've talked to so many souls who died much younger than me, and not one of them thinks their life wasn't complete in some way. You can always learn how to skateboard next time.

End Time: 7:07pm

145. People are very interested in crap, and I gave it to them. Glad to be of service.

146. Some lives are all about the superfluous. Some want it, and some want to give it to them. I probably wasn't a spiritual titan, but who said you have to be?

153. Either we are all celebrities, or none of us are. It can't really work any other way.

154. My marriages were short lived because I wanted my many husbands to tell me what I wanted to hear. The truth is that I was free to tell myself what I wanted to hear. No one else has the power to do this for me.

- 155. No matter how creative you are, your artistic talents are wasted if you're just invested in the temporary promotion of image.
- 156. I dressed rich people and kept their own illusions of specialness going. So why was I a revered figure, and a common man collecting cans on the street was not?
- 157. Money, fame, and power are all tools to promote yourself, and they will lead to your downfall. Everything that goes up must come down.

End Time: 7:52am
